Description

Start this drill with a line on the face off dot and one against the boards. The two players pass the puck until they reach the blue line. At the blue line the inside player gives the puck to the outside player and breaks to the inside expecting a pass from the outside player from the opposite corner. Once they receive the pass they bring the puck into the zone wide and allow the other player to get into good scoring position in the slot. Timing is key to this drill. Players from both corners need to begin at the same time and the inside players cannot get too far ahead of the play or they will be out of position to receive the pass from the outside player.
